2nd Chance 4 Pets Featured in Doggie Aficionado Magazine

LOS GATOS, Calif. (March 17, 2010) – 2nd Chance 4 Pets was featured in the Winter Edition of Doggie Aficionado magazine. The article highlights 2nd Chance 4 Pets’ mission to save pets’ lives by educating pet owners about the importance of planning for the possibility that their pets might outlive them. Dan Vold, the organization’s Volunteer Director of Operations, said that in the aftermath of September 11, 2nd Chance 4 Pets “grew out of a focus on making sure that pet owners have plans in place for their pets.” The nonprofit animal advocacy organization, based in California, provides pet owners, veterinarians and animal care organizations with detailed information and lifetime care solutions to ensure that companion animals are cared for in the event of the death or disability of their pet owner.

Amy Shever, 2nd Chance 4 Pets’ executive director, provided a number of suggestions for pet owners in the article. “Identify caregivers who can care for your pets, maintain written care instructions and set up a finance plan or set aside a fund to cover the care of your pets,” she said.

About 2nd Chance 4 Pets
