2nd Chance 4 Pets' Director Interviewed on WMNF Radio, "Talking Animals" Show

Los Gatos, Calif. (Aug. 14, 2008)—2nd Chance 4 Pets' Director, Amy Shever, was recently interviewed on WMNF 88.5FM's bimonthly radio show, "Talking Animals." During the Aug. 13 interview, Shever and the show's host, Duncan Strauss, discussed how her experience working in animal shelters led her to launch 2nd Chance 4 Pets. In the interview, Shever discussed the importance of lifetime care planning for pets by outlining the basic steps pet owners can take to ensure that their pets will always receive care even if their pets outlive them.

"The interview offered a great opportunity to create awareness and educate the devoted animal lovers that tune in to "Talking Animals," said Shever. "Creating a lifetime care plan for companion animals is an important responsibility every pet owner needs to take seriously. Resources are available to ensure that a beloved pet will be taken care of in the event of an owner's death or disability."

The interview is accessible as an MP3 audio file at www.talkinganimals.net.
